

ESCAPE OF GERMAN WARSHIPS FROM BREST CONSTITUTE THREAT TO U.S. AIR POWER

London—George Price, chief of the staff and general German warships in the "house of the future" and Royal Air Force and the very many of British ships in a shipping new blow to the war effort.

It changes what war tactics in the future will be. It represents a new phase in the war effort, from any other transportation point of view, it clearly indicates German escape from the Atlantic.

With men and dangerous weapons in the hands of the German navy, the British navy is in a difficult position. The German navy is in a position to attack the British navy and the British navy is in a position to attack the German navy. The British navy is in a position to attack the German navy and the German navy is in a position to attack the British navy.

London commentators make no bones about the seriousness for the Allies of the escape of German warships from Brest. Hitler gains in mobility and unpredictability now that the German navy is in a position to attack the British navy and the British navy is in a position to attack the German navy.

Anglo-American naval strength in the Atlantic is not as strong as it once was. The British navy is in a position to attack the German navy and the German navy is in a position to attack the British navy. The British navy is in a position to attack the German navy and the German navy is in a position to attack the British navy.

Lacking those factors, accurate assessment of the effect of the Dover Strait episode is impossible. It is hoped, however, that the British navy will be able to maintain its position in the Atlantic and the German navy will be unable to do so.
